About Whitechapel Gallery

For artists and audiences everywhere

Whitechapel Gallery is located in the heart of London's East End. Locally embedded and globally connected, the Gallery was founded in 1901 to present "the finest art of the world for the people of the East End, London".

Over the years, the Gallery has played host to some of the world's most significant and visionary artists, showcasing art from across the globe, including China, Brazil and the Islamic world. Our mission is to make contemporary art and ideas accessible to the widest possible audiences, and our pioneering learning and outreach programmes recognise the critical role that art can play in firing imaginations, reflecting lived experiences, and opening up new possibilities for thinking, feeling and dreaming.

Whitechapel Gallery offers a direct experience of art to around 200,000 people per year, and reaches 3,300,000 through online activity. It is unique within the sector with 70% of its audience under 40 years of age, ensuring cultural engagement with the next generation. The Gallery's education and outreach programmes engage over 14,000 people a year including schools, teachers, families, youth and community groups.

What we do

We present major exhibitions, new commissions, along with public debates, film screenings and performances. As well as a global audience for art, our programmes reach tens of thousands of children, young people, families and communities who live and work in East London.

Community is at our heart

We are situated between the financial engines of the City and Canary Wharf; and at the heart of a creative industries quarter that spans fashion to tech and gaming design. Our local community in Tower Hamlets is one of the most diverse, but also has some of the highest levels of deprivation in the UK. Working with these communities is central to our founding mission, and bringing our world-class exhibition programme to the East End and all the audiences here.
